London Economics International LLC advises on successful acquisition of Singapore genco

BOSTON, Massachusetts (March 17, 2008) - Exhaustive economic analysis of the Singapore power market by Boston-based London Economics International LLC (LEI) contributed to the recent successful acquisition of a Singapore generation company by a Chinese firm. LEI's work included detailed modeling of Singapore power markets, assistance with due diligence, an assessment of the current and future regulatory environment, and an examination of regional gas markets. Noting that deliverables were prepared in both English and Mandarin, Eva Wang, managing consultant with LEI, noted that "this project is emblematic of LEI's unique skill sets, including sound quantitative modeling, in depth knowledge of power markets and regulation, and the ability to deliver products that meet diverse linguistic and cultural needs.

About London Economics International LLC:

LEI is a global professional services firm providing economic and financial analysis for the energy and infrastructure industries. LEI uses proprietary models to forecast future power prices, and has applied these models to functioning power markets around the world. LEI has the ability to deliver results in numerous languages other than English. In addition to its work in Singapore, the firm is active in the Middle East, Latin America, Eastern Europe, and North America.
